

References

- Collins, S. (2019). What was contemporary music? The new, the modern and the contemporary in the ISCM. In Heile, B. & Wilson, C. (Eds.), The Routledge Research Companion to Modernism in Music. (pp. 56–85). Abingdon, New York: Routledge.
- Greboz-Haring, K., & Weichbold, M. (2018). Contemporary art music and its audiences: Age, gender, and social class profile. Musicae Scientiae. Online First. <https://doi.org/10.1177/1029864918774082>
- Gross, J., & Pitts, S. (2016). Audiences for the contemporary arts: Exploring varieties of participation across art forms in Birmingham, UK. Participations, 13(1), 4–23.
- New Music, New Audiences (2014). New Music: New Audiences Evaluation Report. Retrieved from http://fst.se/sites/default/files/newaud_evaluation_report-1.pdf (last accessed: 02.12.19).
- Pitts, S.E., & Gross, J. (2017). "Audience exchange": cultivating peer-to-peer dialogue at unfamiliar arts events. Arts and the Market, 7(1), 65–79. <https://doi.org/10.1108/AAM-04-2016-0002>
- Pitts, S.E. & Price, S. (2019). Understanding Audiences for the Contemporary Arts Sector Handbook. Retrieved from <http://www.sparc.dept.shef.ac.uk/uaca/handbook/> (last accessed: 19.11.19).
- Sound and Music (2015). The Audience Development Survey 2015. Retrieved from <http://www.soundandmusic.org/ads2015> (last accessed: 02.12.2019)
- Zehme, H. (2005). Zeitgenössische Musik und ihr Publikum. Eine soziologische Untersuchung im Rahmen der Dresdner Tage der zeitgenössischen Musik. Regensburg: ConBrio.
- The Audience Research project on the Ulysses Network website: project.ulysses-network.eu/audience-research/